"THE BLIND RECEIVE THEIR SIGHT"

JOHAN THE BAPTIST while in prison was seized with a fit of the doubts, and he sent two disciples to Jesus enquiring whether He were the Messiah or not. The Great Healer replied by neither affirmation nor negation; He merely bidden the enquirers to go and tell John that "The blind receive their sight."

What, the blind see? Men blind from the day of birth receive their sight? Blind beggars who for years had collected alms now leap with joy and praise the Nazarene for the privilege of looking into the faces of loved ones? Can it be true? Then here is credential enough — "The blind receive their sight."

Every Christian Organization should be able to produce a similar credential as an apologetic for its existence. All about us on the highways of life people grope in darkness. They are blinded by dollars, crops, real estate, passion, greed and bigotry. The Light of the World is to them an unknown Radiance. They live in unending night and unless touched by the Royal Sight-Giver will pass out into the realm of darkness for ever and ever.

The wondrous Man of Light still lives, and He is busy to-day putting darkness to flight. Let Him but touch the spiritual optic nerves of those blinded by sin and, lo, the light dawns and restricted visions are clarified and broadened. We rejoice to declare His touch has not lost its ancient power. For evidence you need but to visit most any Army Hall and witness at its nimble-form the most startling changes of character in those who kneel there blind to duty and their God, but who rise and go forth to spread the tidings that "The blind receive their sight."

"Wherewithal shall a young man cleanse his way? by taking heed thereto according to Thy Word."—Psalm 119:9.

A FRIEND of mine was once coming on a train when five of the nine in the coach began to play cards; they were evidently sharpers, and before long challenged others to play with them, but all declined. At last they turned to my friend and said:

"We can see by your face that you fully understand the game; come, take a turn."

"I did know the cards once; but it is so long since I played that I forget how to play."

"Nonsense!" they said, "you could win all our money, if you only tried."

"Perhaps that would not be very much," he replied; "anyway, I will not attempt. Five of you are enough for your game; we will look on."

As they still pegged away at him, he at last said:

"Gentlemen, I tell you I cannot play; but there is one thing I can do."

"What is that?" they asked eagerly.

"I can tell fortunes."

"Capital! Will you tell ours?"

"If you wish it; but I warn you it may not be very flattering."

"What card will you want?"

"The five of spades, please," and it was handed to him with expectation of great sport.

"I shall require one other thing, if you don't mind," he further said.

"What?" they asked a little impatiently.

THE "FIVE OF SPADES"

BEING THE STORY OF A CERTAIN "FORTUNE-TELLER" AND WHAT HE TOLD ABOUT THE FUTURITY OF FIVE CARD-SHARPERS

"A Bible."

They could not produce one.
"No, but you had one once," said the fortune-teller, "and if you had followed its precepts you would not have been where you now are. However, I have one," and to their dismay he produced it.

THE FORTUNE-TELLER'S PROPHECY

A pistol would hardly have been a more unwelcome object. But the fortune-teller began—

"Gentlemen, you see these two pips at the top of the card? I wish them to represent your two eyes; this one in the middle, your mouth; and these other two, your knees. Now, in Rev. 1:7 I read, 'Behold, He cometh with clouds; and every eye shall see Him.' The speaker is the Nazarene, once red with blood for sinners like you and me. Your eyes will see Him, and you will have to stand before Him to be judged. That is the future of your eyes," he continued; "now concerning your mouth and knees, let me read Phil. 2:9-11, 'Wherefore God also hath highly exalted Him, and given Him a name which is above every name; that at the name of Jesus every knee should bow, of things in heaven, and things in earth, and things under the earth; and that every tongue should confess that Jesus Christ is Lord, to the glory of God the Father.' From this I foretell that your knees will bow to Jesus, and your tongue that used to say, 'Gentle Jesus' and 'Our Father,' will have to confess that He is Lord of all. Your eyes will see Him, and when you see Him, your knees will grow weak, and you will fall before His majesty."

They got more than they bargained for; but he gave them some more.

"Gentlemen, that is only the first reading of this card; now for the second, if you please. These five spades represent five actual spades that are already made, and may, ere long, dig the graves of you five sinners, and then your souls will be in hell, crying in thirst for a drop of water and you will wish you had never been born."

The five card-sharpers were getting more and more fidgety; but it was useless, for they could not get out, as the train would not stop for sometime yet.

"Gentlemen," continued the fortune-teller, "you may escape this terrible future, and my fortune not come true, if you will do what I did, and perhaps I was the worst of the six. My eyes saw Jesus upon a Cross for me, in my stead, bearing my doom. My tongue confessed Him Lord, and my knees bowed to Him in lowly submission. If you do this, I can foretell the very reverse of all I have said. I have told your fortunes, as I promised, and if I am right, you ought to cross my palm with a dollar apiece; but I do not wish your five dollars, I will be content if one of you will promise to try the Saviour whose blood cleanseth from all sin."

They would neither pay nor promise; but as the train pulled up at the station they tumbled out as if the carriage had contained a small-pox patient, leaving my friend in possession of the "five of spades."

"Stop," he cried, "here is your card," which he tossed after them.

AFTER TEN YEARS

Recently walking near his home at Shepherd's Bush, London, England, he was accosted by someone saying:

"Good evening, sir."

"It is a good evening, if all your sins are forgiven," was the rejoinder.

"Yes, and I am glad you are still at it," replied the stranger.

"Still at what?"

"Telling fortunes."

"That is not my line."

"Well, you told mine more than ten years ago."

"I think you are mistaken," said my friend. "No; any one who has once seen you can never mistake you."

He then recalled the memorable ride.

"Ah! I remember, and you left like a lot of cowards, without paying the fortune-teller."

"I am your payment. Your words came true of three of us; three spades have dug their graves. The other one I saw a few days ago; he is anxious to be saved from the fortune you foretold, and is attending religious meetings. As I parted with him I said, 'Sain, don't forget the five of spades.'"

"And what about yourself?"

"When you saw me, I had been to a sister's. I was right down miserable. Mother had just died. Calling me to her bedside, she had said, 'William, kiss your mother, and I leave you this Scripture: "Behold, He cometh with clouds; and every eye shall see Him." (Rev. 1:7.) When you quoted these very words, it seemed as if my dear mother rose up and frowned upon the cards. That text followed me. I drank, and drank, and drank again; but continually I heard, "Every eye shall see Him." At last I went to California, for the gold diggings. As soon as I landed, having nothing to do, I stopped to hear some singing; the singers formed a little procession, and I followed to a Hail. When the young man got up to speak, he gave out as his text, "Behold, He cometh with clouds; and every eye shall see Him." It was more than I could stand; that night I bowed my knees in submission, saw Jesus as my Saviour, and with my tongue confessed Him."

He was soon going back to the diggings; but that one interview was good payment for the fortune-teller.—W.L.

STRANGERS NO MORE

"Ye are no more strangers."—Ephesians 2:19.

THE Christian is not a stranger but a child in the Home. He is of the "Household of Faith"—of those who link their souls by faith with Him Who is the Elder Brother. Can there be a more affecting description of our position in the innermost circle of the friends and lovers of God? The "stranger" lives a life apart, alien, narrow. He knows nothing of the freedom the son knows.

We were "strangers" in those old dead days. Between God and us there was a sharply drawn, distinct antagonism. Yes, it was more than the strangeness which comes from ignorance or unfamiliarity; it was the strangeness which results from anxious enmity. Had we been given a place in the household we should have been there as an enemy, felt as an enemy. It would have been that at the worst; but even at the best we should have been conscious of restraint, want of sympathy, lack of oneness. Thank God that is past! We have been reconciled to God by the death of His Son. But oh, so many of us fail to realize our new position. We are not yet home in the Home. The old restraint, awkwardness, embarrassment, lingers in the soul. How unwillingly we use the privilege of approach to the Father.

It is time enough to scoff at the fallen man when we are sure that had we been in his place, we would have resisted the temptation.

"LEGAL TENDER" vs. REAL PAY

THE world of commerce has reduced pay to mere pieces of metal which they call "legal tender."

A man plunges into the sea and saves a man from drowning. He is given some of this "legal tender" and he is considered paid. Another man mixes medicine which saves a life and he is paid in "legal tender." Another man preaches the Gospel and prays; he receives some "legal tender" and is said to be paid. A man may even kill men and receive "legal tender" in payment.

But this sort of pay is a mere makeshift, a local convenience, a temporary settlement of personal accounts and incidents in the world of commerce.

In God's realm pay, reward, compensation is made in kind. The reward is in proportion and nature such as the service rendered. Sow wheat; God pays you in wheat. Show mercy; receive mercy. Plant peace; reap peace. Broadcast love; receive echoes of love. Sow to the Spirit; reap life everlasting. As ye sow, so shall ye also reap.

The man who works for "legal tender" only, is poorly paid; he is fully paid and may expect no more.

The man whose service can be paid in "legal tender" gives a low grade of service.

The man whose service stops where the "legal tender" stops, stops a long way this side of Heaven.

Isn't it true that the reason why so many of the bad rumors about others is that we WANT to believe them?

Restoring The Walls of Jerusalem

THE HOLY CITY IS NOW ENCIRCLED JUST AS IN BIBLE DAYS—THE CITY
SAVED BY A DREAM—DETERIORATION UNDER TURKISH REGIME

THE removal of the famous Clock Tower at the Jaffa Gate, in Jerusalem, Palestine, calls attention to the work which has been carried out by the Pro-Jerusalem Society in restoring the walls of the Holy City. Indeed, it is now possible to ascend them at certain places and make a complete circuit of Jerusalem along its ancient walls.

The society came into existence about four years ago. Its aim is "to preserve the ancient monuments, encourage technical education, plant trees, and in general beautify the ancient and historic city of Jerusalem." It was founded by Sir Ronald Storrs, and influential persons of all sects and communities are represented on its council. It is an officially recognized body, and receives a grant of about $12,000 a year from the Palestine Government. The whole of this sum, and also any other money contributed by interested persons, is spent upon the excellent work of preserving ancient Jerusalem.

Destruction of the Walls

During the last few months the society has devoted a great deal of attention to the walls of Jerusalem, and as already stated, it is now possible to walk right round them. It was David and Solomon who first enclosed the Holy City with a wall. After its destruction by Nebuchadnezzar, in B.C. 590, another enclosing wall was raised by Nehemiah, and there it stood in all its glory at the time of Christ. This Second Wall, as it is described, was destroyed by Titus when he took Jerusalem in the year 70. Then came the Third, or Agrippa Wall, which was likewise razed to the ground by subsequent conquerors.

The present walls were built by Suleiman the Magnificent in 1536-42. This is attested by the numerous inscriptions found on the gates. According to local tradition it was the work of two brothers, who commenced at the Jaffa Gate in opposite directions, and never saw each other again for seven years, finally meeting at St.

the wise man that he at once made up his mind not only to rebuild the walls but the principal buildings of the city. When his work was finished he ordered the lions to be carved over St. Stephen's Gate in memory of the dream that led him in the right way.

The circuit of the present walls, which vary in height from thirty-eight to forty feet, is about three miles, enclosing just over two hundred acres, one sixth of its extent being devoted to the temple area, which contains thirty-five acres. The walls are graced with thirty-four towers and eight gates, one of the latter, the Golden Gate, being permanently closed. The names of the gates in order, going east, are: The Jaffa Gate, Zion Gate, Dung Gate, Golden Gate, St. Stephen's Gate, Herod's Gate, Damascus Gate, and the New Gate. The only gates of importance are the Jaffa Gate, the Damascus Gate, and St. Stephen's Gate.

An interesting question arises. Do the present walls mark the boundary of the city of Christ's day? All that is known for certain is that the remains of the former walls were left as they had been thrown down, and that the present stones were built more or less on the same foundations. Here and there slight deviations were made, but generally speaking, the present wall stands in the line of its immediate predecessors.

Proofs of Antiquity

No regard was paid to the respective marks of former builders, as shown in the dressing of the stones. Hence we see the Byzantine above the Crusading, and the stones of Christian masons resting on those of pagan Rome. It is only where foundation courses exist that we can see the different building epochs represented by their respective positions in the structure. And these are infallible proofs of their antiquity, just as much as the intermixture of stones shows the work of the latest builder.

We know from excavations made by the Stephen's Gate, in the eastern wall, where they placed their mark—the lions.

Warned in a Dream

Another story found in Arabic writings gives the credit of the undertaking to a dream of the Sultan, or its interpretation. It is said his first intention was to raze the city to the ground and utterly destroy it; but in a vision one night he saw two lions fighting, and they so disturbed his rest that he suffered all next day. He called a learned sheikh and asked him what it meant, feeling sure there was some important event at hand. The wise man replied by asking what work he was contemplating. And the Sultan said: "The destruction of Jerusalem."

"The dream was a warning," said the scholar, "against such sacrilege. Cease to think of destroying God's holy place, or evil will attend you."

The Sultan was so struck with the words of Palestine Exploration Fund the course of the First Wall, built by David and Solomon, but one cannot be certain as to the course of the Second Wall, which marked the boundary of the city in Christ's day. For instance, the Church of the Holy Sepulchre, which is said to mark the site of Christ's burial, lies within the present walls. Now, Christ was buried "without the city walls," and many scholars place this portion of the north wall to the south of the church. The failure to determine the exact course of the Second Wall along this point leaves the problem of the site of the Holy Sepulchre an unsettled one.

A Greater Jerusalem

A century ago there were no buildings beyond the present walls, and at sundown the gates were all closed, but to-day there is a greater Jerusalem outside the walls than within. Here it is interesting to note that the line of improvement has followed closely the de-

JERUSALEM— The Eternal City

JERUSALEM is a sacred city to more than half the inhabitants of the earth. To the Jew it is the place where Abraham met the Angel of Jehovah, who rescinded the command to sacrifice Isaac thus keeping the Hebrews for ever from offering human sacrifices so common in the religions of surrounding nations. (See Gen. 22.) It was the city of their great king, David; and also the city in which Solomon built the Temple.

To the Mohammedans Jerusalem has also a sacred significance, for their religion has many Jewish elements, they revere Jewish patriarchs, and they built on the site of the Jewish Temple, the sacred Mosque of Omar.

To all other hallowed associations touching the Eternal City, the Christian adds the precious memories of the life and death of Jesus Christ. It was from a spot just outside the city that our Lord said farewell to his disciples, and the New Testament reveals that He will one day return in person to this same trysting place.

scription of the rebuilding of Jerusalem given in Jeremiah. Then one of the gates was left open all night, and presently a second one, and so on, until all were never closed. In fact, many of them have been widened to allow carriages to pass freely in and out.

The principal entrance to the city is the Jaffa Gate. And here, in 1907, was set up on the edge of the wall a clock tower. It boasted of a fine clock showing both Arabic and Hebrew times. It was, in fact, quite a conspicuous landmark. To the surprise of many this clock tower has now been taken down, on the ground that it was ugly and not in keeping with the dignity of the ancient wall on which it stood.

During the Turkish regime nothing in the way of preserving the walls was done. As a result they fell into a very dilapidated condition, more particularly in regard to the top stones, many of which were carried away. Besides, each landowner within the walls blocked the walks at both extremes of his property, and thus the walls became inaccessible.

A Walk round the Walls

Through the efforts of the Pro-Jerusalem Society the missing stones have been restored, the rubbish and growth which covered certain portions of the walls have been removed, the obstructions that prevented a continuous path have been taken down, and here and there in dangerous parts iron rails and banisters have been provided. To-day anyone, on paying a small fee, can walk along the top of the wall right round the Holy City.

THE LETTER AND THE SPIRIT

THE letter killeth. There is an awfully deadening effect in endless talking about Jesus, the familiarity with the name and the story; an awfully deadening effect in making Him the theme of our orations and arguments. How painfully sharp is the contrast between the sermon and the life! We listen to what the preacher says about the Saviour, and then we go away from the Word to the world, from the mere sound to the solid realities of life. How real is all outside — the streets, the people, the work, the wants of every day and hour! And alas! how unreal is all that has to do with religion. Christ is a name, a memory, a proposition for a problem, a text for a sermon, a starting point for the theories. How true is it—the letter killeth. But—the Spirit giveth life. "He shall testify of Me"; "He shall glorify Me." Then how real a presence is the Lord Jesus, the Blessed Brother whose very hand doth uphold us; whose love is our strength and whose service is our joy; who comes to abide with us and commune with us: real as earth, and self, and sin, and life are real; the abiding and unchanging, the only Reality.—Mark Guy Pearse.

Sending The Light into The Night

THE centre of Salvation Army activity in Kenya is Nairobi, and in this town of 18,000 people, only 3,000 of whom are white, a wonderful work of grace is in operation. Quite a large percentage are heathens, who believe strongly in the power of evil spirits to do them harm.

It is their custom when a person dies, say in a hut, to throw the body to the hyenas, and in some instances a member of the family will burn down the hut to prevent the evil spirit from coming again, or a goat will be sacrificed under some sacred tree, and a witch

The Drum-head Remains

doctor will perform certain rites to declare the hut free from evil. From this glimpse of local life it will be seen that The Army had to cope with an immense difficulty, nevertheless, so anxious were the people to find a way of escape from the horrors of superstition that when our work was commenced in the Colony some four years ago, it was a common occurrence to see between fifty and sixty seekers kneeling around the drum in the Open-Air, asking the peace of God. And the drum-head remains to this day the scene of remarkable conversions.

Campaigning in Nigeria

Native Chief Manifests Interest in Army's Meetings

Lieut.-Colonel Souter, accompanied by seven of the Bandsmen from Lagos, has conducted interesting soul-saving Campaigns at Badagry and Igbogbele. Owing to the restricted space, sleep was impossible during the all-night journey to Badagry, but the cheery Bandsmen brightened the journey with their songs. The first Meeting was held in the Open-Air (the Hall being too small), where fourteen men sought Salvation kneeling at the drumhead. A similar scene occurred in the Hall where fourteen men and women dedicated their lives to the service of God.

A five hours' canoe journey brought the party to Igbogbele. There, again, the Hall was found to be too small, and the Meeting was transferred to the Open-Air. The native Chief attended, and showed deep interest in the proceedings. The party then returned to Lagos by Market Canoe. It was crowded with natives, and the Colonel used the opportunity to speak to them of the love of God.

Fight With Opium Devil

The Terrible Struggles of a Recent Chinese Convert

In Feng Chen, China, a man and wife have been converted. Their story is a very interesting one. Just before Christmas the wife began to attend the Meetings. She sought Salvation and began to pray for her husband, who was an opium smoker. The woman could not read but she bought a Gospel portion and asked her well educated husband to read and explain it to her. As he did so, his heart was touched. He saw what a sinner he was and asked that an Officer might visit him and pray with him. The Officer pointed him to Jesus. Then began a fight with the opium devil. His wife told the Officer of his struggling to overcome the craving. When he could not sleep he would rise and read his Bible, and beseech God to come to his help. Thank God he conquered, and as soon as he was strong enough he came to the Meetings and testified to God's saving power. His body is getting stronger and his faith in God is wonderful.

Holland Tent Campaigns

Conducted at Four Centres—Great Crowds and Many Seekers

The tent Campaigns in progress on a recent Sunday at Amsterdam, The Hague, Rotterdam, and Amersfoort attracted unprecedented crowds, the seating capacity of the spacious marquees being insufficient to accommodate the throngs of people who gathered.

Commissioner de Groot led at Amsterdam, and was enthusiastically welcomed by rank and file. Splendid Meetings resulted, the Spirit of God was very manifest, and, in response to very striking appeals, fifty-three souls surrendered.

Lieut.-Commissioner Howard, whose past work in Holland is remembered with deep appreciation, had a great reception at The Hague, splendid enthusiasm prevailed throughout, and fifty-eight seekers came forward.

An Adriatic Opening

Ex-Royal Prima Donna and her Three Nieces at the Mercy Seat

A report has been received from Major W. Alex. Ebbs, Commander for Italy, in which he describes some most remarkable cases of conversion which have taken place in Trieste, where The Army has recently established a Corps.

One is a woman who had been a nun for twenty-five years, and others are the wife of a tradesman and her eighteen-year old son. The Officers of the Corps afterwards held a Meeting in her villa, at which fifteen persons were present and a splendid impression was made.

A fourth Convert is an ex-prima donna, of the Moscow Imperial Opera, who has often sung before the Russian Royal Family. Her three nieces have likewise found the Saviour, and desire to work in the Corps. Two young women linguists, one writing eight languages and the other four, have given themselves to God. Three hospital nurses, a young man, and the wife and son of a sea captain have all expressed their desire to become Salvationists.

When the Major visited this Corps for a Sunday Campaign there were five seekers at the mercy-seat, making twenty-six for the four weeks since the Corps opened. Three others have since surrendered to God. Fourteen recruits have already been enrolled. The names of forty-two children have been placed on the Young People's Roll, and everything points to a highly successful work continuing in this Adriatic town.

Invasion of Esthonia

Ten Thousand People Gather for Great Open-Air Meeting

Led by their National Organizer, fifty Life-Saving Guards from Sweden spent a week-end in Helsingfors, where their Meetings and marches created considerable interest. A monster Life-Saving Guard Demonstration was given in the Folkets Hus on the Monday night before a packed house.

In connection with a recent general holiday Helsingfors II. Corps made a trip by steamer to the Capital of Esthonia, Reval. On arrival they were greeted and followed by large crowds of people to a church building, where, after being provided with refreshments by courtesy of the members of the church, they held a Meeting. The building proved far too small. Permission had been secured for the conducting of an Open-Air Meeting in one of the largest squares, and it is estimated that 10,000 people attended. There are fine prospects for The Army in Esthonia.

Helping Stricken Korea

Captain Kilsco Haan, the Korean Officer in Honolulu, Hawaiian Islands, immediately on receipt of the news that thousands of Koreans were in a sorry plight because of the lack of food and clothing, organized a Relief Committee, shipped $2,000 worth of supplies, and also sent 1,500 yen to Commissioner Palstra, in Seoul.

OUR WOMEN'S SECTION

A FEW HELPFUL HINTS FOR HOME-MAKERS

RENOVATING CARPETS

TO REMOVE STAINS FROM CARPETS. Add a pint of ox-gall to a pail of water; rub this in with a soft brush, and with clean warm water wash off the lather which forms. This is most unlikely to damage a delicately-colored carpet.

When ink is spilled on a carpet, as much as possible should be absorbed in a piece of blotting-paper, if it is a new stain. Afterwards pour on some fresh milk, rubbing it well in and off, repeating the process two or three times. If ink has been on the carpet a long time, this treatment may not be successful. In this case, try rubbing with a mixture made by a teaspoonful of oxalic acid in half a tea-cupful of water.

Grease stains may be removed from carpets by placing a piece of brown paper over the stain, and applying the point of a hot iron. This will cause the grease to be absorbed in the paper.

Obstinate grease spots should be treated as follows: Put a tablespoonful of ammonia into a pint of hot water, and scrub the grease spots with a clean brush. Rub dry with a clean cloth, then make a paste with Fuller's earth and cold water, lay over the spots, and leave until dry;

then brush off. If very old, the Fuller's earth may have to be repeated.

JOINING CARPET. If two pieces of carpet are to be joined, it is a great mistake to make a seam which causes an unsightly ridge on the right side. The patterns should first be matched, the carpet then reversed, and each edge buttonholed firmly with flax thread.

SOILED RUGS can be easily cleaned at home. A rug should first be well beaten, on grass if possible, and then laid flat on the floor and thoroughly rubbed with powdered Fuller's earth. It should then be rolled over and left for a week or two; the longer the better. The rug must then be beaten, swept with a broom which has been dipped in ammonia water, and left to dry.

JAMS AND JELLIES

ORANGE JELLY

4 lbs. marmalade oranges, 2 lemons, 4 pints of water, and preserving sugar.

Method—Wipe the oranges and lemons with a damp cloth, and grate off the yellow rind only. Then remove all the white skin, which is not used in the making of the jelly. Cut the inner part of the oranges and lemons into small pieces, and put into a preserving-pan with the water. Boil for half an hour, stirring frequently, then strain through a hair-sieve or jelly-bag, and allow the juice to drop without pressure. Measure this liquid and put it into a clean preserving-pan, with the grated rinds and one pound of preserving-sugar, and boil from ten to fifteen minutes, or until it will jelly. Skim well, pour into jars, and cover while hot.

ORANGE AND APPLE JELLY

Peel thinly three bitter oranges, discard the white pith, cut them up and remove the pips. Add four pints of water to fruit and rind. Boil for one hour, and strain. Peel and core three large apples, weigh these and juice, allow an equal amount of sugar. Boil all slowly till apples are reduced to a jelly.

APPLE JAM

Peel and core sufficient apples to yield eight pounds; cover with six pounds loaf sugar, one quarter pint water, half pint vinegar, and twenty cloves tied in a muslin bag. Let the fruit soak overnight. Next morning boil slowly in the usual way for one hour, stirring frequently to prevent burning.

WHAT TO DO

When the Pressure of Home Cares Burden Your Life

IS THERE a woman weighed down by the burden of home cares, who is not feeling well; who finds her children almost unbearably troublesome? Is she almost in despair and without the support of her husband, who is away from home?

Let her lay all her burdens before the Lord, and ask Him to make her equal to them; to take away the tendency to worry and enable her to bear up bravely.

If she will keep on doing this God will certainly let her know that He is with her and has heard her prayer, and once she has that assurance she will want to keep on praying. So the habit will be formed.

One day a widow who was in great sorrow asked a man of God what she should do under her trial. She had just lost her only child, who had been her sole comfort, the one being for whom she had lived. Now, after her hard day's toil, she went home to an empty room, and life was unbearably lonely and apparently devoid of purpose. No welcoming smile, no loving preparations awaited her.

That man of God had an appointment to keep, and could not stay long, but he listened to all she told him with real sympathy, and then said, "Just do this. When you get into your empty home, say Jesus is here; Jesus will help me." Keep on saying it, even if at first you do not feel any different.

A year later the same woman came to him smiling, and made her case known, reminding him of their earlier talk.

"I followed your advice," she said, "and it has made all the difference in my life. I think no more of the loneliness now. Jesus has revealed himself to me."

We pass on the advice given above. Whenever loneliness, or sorrow, or burden, or worry, beset you, remember to say, "Jesus is here; Jesus will help me." Then tell Him all about it; He will understand and know how best to help you.

The Family Circle

To assist in the promotion of Christian fellowship at the evening family circle, we suggest use of the Bible portions and comments here given.

Any converted member of a family should audibly read the scriptures after the meal is finished before the members disperse for the pursuits of the evening.

SUNDAY, SEPT. 5th, ACTS 26. "WE KNEELED DOWN ON SHORE, AND PRAYED."

To Paul any spot was "ground," and any occasion a time to talk to God. He had such constant touch with the Father that anywhere and at any time could unburden his heart, and known his needs at the Throne of Grace. Have you learned this of a life of triumph?

"For His grace and power are none can ever ask too much." MONDAY, SEPT. 7th, ACTS 27. "I AM READY . . . TO DIE . . . FOR THE LORD."

And some years afterward gave Paul the honor and privilege for Him. Sometimes we for the chance of doing something great for God, and may even wonder how for him as the martyr, but let us not forget that we are "daily" in the little humdrum of life, and can glorify Him as much as if we did something heroic.

TUESDAY, SEPT. 8th, ACTS 26. "DO THEREFORE THIS WE SAY."

These leaders of the Church Jerusalem, anxious for Paul's advice him so to act that he might be seen for themselves groundless were the rumors that they had heard about him though their plan failed, the gesture was a wise one. We always prevent the spread of a rumor, but we can "avoid the voice of evil," and try so to speak as to give to all the opportunity of knowing the facts. "If they wish to misjudge me let them," is the spirit of Christ.

WEDNESDAY, SEPT. 9th, ACTS 27-32. "AN EPHESIAN, WHO THEY SUPPOSED THAT PAUL BROUGHT INTO THE TEMPLE."

No Gentile, on penalty of a dread venture beyond the outer of the Temple. Certain Jews, seen Trophimus, a Greek, abiding with Paul, supposed that he had gone together into the temple and aroused the whole city the Apostle. Let us beware of acting on as fact what we only "suppose" to be true.

THURSDAY, SEPT. 10th, ACTS 33-40. "A CITIZEN OF NO CITY."

Paul was naturally proud of his birthplace, for it was famous learning, and had on its coins which means "independent." ever our nationality we may be proud and fond of our own birthplace. At the same time, as Salvationists, we must have large enough to love and see well-being of all men.

FRIDAY, SEPT. 11th, ACTS 13. "THOU SHALT BE HIS WITNESS."

What we consciously say "witness" with our lips is very near and God is willing to use our words; but what we mean by "witness" with our lives is more valuable, and what God is May we never disappoint Him witness faithfully for Him to-day.

SATURDAY, SEPT. 12th, ACTS 17-24. "GET THEE QUICKLY OF JERUSALEM . . . FOR SEND THEE FAR HENCE."

So the first great mission of the Church of Christ received the foreign service. Doubtless, the strenuous years that with their loneliness, harsh disappointments, the recall these words often brought fresh hope, courage, and strength. "Go, like the old disciples, And tread the path they trod. Your duty lies before you, Go—leave the rest to God."

CURIOSITY LED TO CONVERSION

IN THE CASE OF SERGEANT-MAJOR JOHN WILSON, RHODES AVENUE CORPS

JOHN was born and brought up in the little village of Kingston amid the highlands of Scotland. The discipline of his childhood days was of the strictest character, for his parents were devout worshippers at the Scottish Free Church.

Of such an extreme character was this early training that John was not permitted to read a newspaper, and it was not until he had reached manhood's estate that he did indulge in this forbidden pastime. On the Sabbath day the villagers would flock en masse to the kirk, and it was an adamant rule, recognized throughout the village, that no work beyond what was absolutely necessary would be performed on the Holy Day. At the Sunday School the children were taught to memorize and recite the Psalms of David.

Thus it is not surprising that John's outlook on life was the right one, considering the mould in which he had been cast. All his days he has been a total abstainer and has lived a sane, consistent life.

At the age of sixteen, feeling that his opportunities in the little village were limited in scope, he removed to Glasgow and whilst there served his apprenticeship as an engineer. After his marriage he felt he could improve his lot by emigrating to the New World. This he did and settled in Toronto.

It proved to be a good move and he prospered in basket and store. He was not satisfied, however, and, as time went on his discontent increased. The Army had never entered into his calculations until, one day, his wife asked him to accompany her to the Hall in the Rhodes Avenue district. Being mildly curious he acceded to her request. A Brigade of men Cadets from the Training Garrison were at that time attached to the Corps and one of these, fully alive to his chances of soul-winning, approached our Comrade during the Prayer Meeting and enquired after his spiritual welfare. John Wilson was nettled and not in the least pleased with what he thought was the impertinence of a young upstart. So he answered rather curtly, "What has that to do with you?" However, the Cadet continued his exhortations—but without success.

Contrary to what might be expected, John Wilson returned to the Meetings on the following Sunday and from that time on became a regular attendant. He does not, however, date his conversion from the time he knelt at the penitential-form, which occurred shortly after the foregoing incident, but from an occasion when he was riding in a street car and he saw a vision of the Christ. In his vision there appeared two paths—one leading to Hell and destruction; the other leading to Heaven and hope. Christ, who stood at the junction of the ways, seemed to be speaking and His utterance was "Choose you this day whom ye will serve." He chose the Heavenly path and has trodden it ever since.

As a faithful Soldier and subsequent Local he has rendered meritorious service in the Rhodes Avenue Corps; having occupied at different times the positions of Corps Secretary and Sergeant-Major. His family is thoroughly Salvationistic, one daughter holding the positions of Y.P. Legion Leader, Songster Organist and Bandwoman.

A SEPTUAGENARIAN LOCAL OFFICER

SERGEANT-MAJOR GROENER, BERMUDA, BOASTS SAME BIRTHDATE AS THE GENERAL

Sergeant-Major Groener

RANKING amongst the foremost of Local Officers in the Territory is Sergeant-Major Groener of Hamilton, Bermuda. His consistent life, efficiency in discharging his duties and happy confederation have given him the esteem of all who know him. One needs but to speak to any of the business men and they will tell you what a splendid type of man is Mr. Groener.

The Sergeant-Major is a native of the Island of St. Eustatious, Dutch

West Indies, being born there on March 24th, 1858, and has the distinction of having the same birthday as our General, a fact of which he is very proud. He came to Bermuda in the year 1891. Using his own testimony, he says:

"The Salvation Army commenced their work here just five years after I came to the island. I attended the first Meeting held in Hamilton. It was in the old town hall, now the city hall. I followed up the Meetings regularly, and when they moved across the street to the Eureka Hall, our present Citadel, I went with them. On the evening of Tuesday, March 25th, 1896 (about two months after the work had commenced) in a Meeting conducted by Ensign, now Lieut.-Colonel Desbrisay, I went forward and knelt at the penitential-form and gave my heart to God."

Enrolment as a Soldier soon followed, and shortly afterwards he was commissioned as Color-Sergeant. His next position was that of Young People's Sergeant-Major. For the past ten years he has been the Corps Sergeant-Major and as such has been a tower of strength to each succeeding Corps Officer. Although in his seventieth year, he is still very active and doing his best as far as possible to push on the War.

A good word should be said of Mr. Groener who, while not a Salvationist, is not backward in encouraging the Sergeant-Major in the work he is doing for God and souls.

If you want to put the world right start with yourself!

CHARLES SOWTON,

THE SALVATION ARMY puts great faith in personal testimony. Among the very first duties in which a convert is instructed is that of publicly declaring the change of heart that he or she has experienced. The object of such action is twofold. Public, personal testimony confirms the experience of the speaker and presents the Gospel in a new light to the hearer. No man has a personality quite like another's, and each different personality is the means of presenting the truth in a different light. It has been proved over and over again that the simple testimony of a new convert has been the means of the conversion of men who have sat for weeks and months listening to the most accomplished speakers as they explained God's claims.
Whatever comes from the heart goes to the heart, and the heart-felt words of an ignorant child in the faith can be used for the doing of great things in the Master's name.

One essential must feature all testimony if it is to go to the hearts of the hearers. It must be definite. The least doubt expressed as to whether the heart has been thoroughly cleansed will raise in the minds of the sincere unconverted listeners, a host of corresponding doubts regarding the power of the Blood to cleanse them. This being so, before testimony can be given, a Soldier must surrender all to God and believe in faith that he has been accepted by Him. It is the duty of all saved persons to tell others of the experience they enjoy and because of this every Salvationist should take the greatest care with his spiritual life so that he does not lose the power of testifying to the joy and peace
there is to be found in serving God.

MRS. COMMISSIONER SOWTON

Conducts Final Meeting of Season at Jackson's Point

AUGUST 23rd marked the closing Sunday of the camping season at Jackson's Point.
Many hallowed Meetings have been experienced during the eight weeks which the Camp has been open, and the services of this Sunday were no exception. During the two months many and varied have been the services held. The Life-Saving Scouts and Guards, numbering over one hundred in each group, have made "The Grove" ring with their singing; the four separate groups of Fresh-Air children also had held their usual bright programs. On the occasion of the season's concluding Meeting the campers were glad that Mrs. Commissioner Sowton took the helm. She was ably assisted by Colonel Noble. Lieut-Colonel Perry also participated, giving a short address to the children who, we are sure, derived great benefit therefrom, for he related the story of a small boy who had but an unpretentious beginning, yet who had risen to great heights. We doubt not that many young hearts were stirred to vow that opportunities for further development would not be allowed to pass without an effort made to grasp them.

Adjutant and Mrs. Coles who, with their family, are spending a furlough at the Camp, were heartily welcomed, and Mrs. Coles fittingly replied to the warm greetings offered.

In her address, Mrs. Sowton spoke chiefly to the young people, but there were also some helpful remarks for the older folks. She unfolded to her eager young listeners the story of Jesus feeding the multitude with the barley loaves and fishes, to which all listened with evident relish. Her words, uttered with characteristic deliberation and earnestness, were used of God to solemnize the hearts of those who had gathered beneath the forested canopy.

The following paragraph give the gist of Mrs.
Sowton's address:

There were great crowds who followed Jesus, among them being many children. Jesus had come to them because He said they were as sheep without a shepherd and His heart went out to them in pity. He not only wanted to help them spiritually, but He wanted to feed their bodies because He knew that before they got home they would be very hungry. Some had journeyed far to hear Him. But where were they to get bread? Someone who said near said, "There is a lad here who has five barley loaves and fishes, but what are they among so many?" Jesus replied, "Bring them hither to Me," and they brought them. How surprised that boy must have been when they came and asked him for his bread and fishes! When Jesus received the loaves into His hands the first thing he did was to thank His Father for them, and then blessed them. Do you always thank God for what He gives to you? When you sit down to your meals do you remember that the food comes from God? I am so glad the lad gave Jesus his little gift. To be sure, it was not very much, but it was ALL he had, and the BEST he had, and with it Jesus fed a multitude. You boys and girls may say, "I have not anything I can give to Jesus." Ah, but you have. You can give Him your love and affection. You can serve Him day by day.
If you place yourself in His hands, He will bless you as He blessed the lad and his fishes.
He will help you to meet the needs of other lives.

THE CHIEF SECRETARY

With Mrs. Powley, Campaigns at Parry
Sound

THE CHIEF SECRETARY and Mrs. Powley, accompanied by Major Knight, Divisional Commander, visited Parry Sound Corps for the week-end of August 22nd-23rd, and an exceptionally blessed period was the result.

Ideal weather permitted several very effective Open-Air Meetings being held, at which excellent crowds gathered and listened attentively. What can be said of these Meetings applies also to the Meetings held in the Citadel, for the Divine Presence was abundantly evident in every service and all who attended were greatly encouraged.

Mrs. Powley's singing was much enjoyed and many hearts were stirred by the message given out in this way. The Colonel's heart-to-heart talks and expositions from the Scriptures were effectively used of God and created holy aspirations in the hearts of saint and sinner alike. A happy climax to the day's fight was the surrender of one soul in the Salvation Meeting.

The Band contributed not a little to the success of the week-end and, under the leadership of Bandmaster Scott, rendered many pleasing items.

MIGRATION

Commissioner Lamb's Forthcoming Empire Tour

With a view to making a fresh investigation as to the possibilities of transplanting British people from the Homeland to the King's Overseas Dominions, the General has instructed Commissioner Lamb, the International Social Secretary, to visit Canada, Australia, New Zealand, and South Africa.

The Commissioner, who will leave London next month, and will probably be absent about eight months, is already full of plans for important developments in the near future both for relieving unemployment at home and adding to the comparatively sparse populations of the Overseas Dominions.

Mrs. Lamb, who is accompanying the Commissioner, will apply herself to the side of the work which concerns women and children.

It is an open secret that the British Government have always taken a keen interest in The Army's Migration Work, and have largely modelled their methods for carrying out their schemes under the Overseas Settlement Act, on those employed by The Army.

The Army's leaders have always held that the great factor in successful migration is the absorbing power of the Overseas Dominions. We have happily transplanted in the Dominions more British people than all the other voluntary agencies put together, but have never used social or economic pressure as an argument for migration unless we were assured that the absorbing powers of the Dominions were sufficient to warrant our enterprise.

Captain Frances Hawkes, late of London Divisional Headquarters, who is now enroute to India where she will take an appointment.

live to see their mission come up out of great tribulation into assured power and triumph.

"Even forty years ago Army missionaries were ridiculed, mobbed, persecuted, and in many cases imprisoned for breach of the peace. That time has vanished like an ill dream. Since then The Army folk have been formally invited by Governments to come in and do their endeavors in behalf of social order and uplift.

"The man who refuses his coin for The Salvation Army kettle, labels himself a bigot or a misanthrope. That original collection of eighteen pence, made at Mile End Road sixty years ago, has been a more profitable investment for humanity than all the works of the Cyclopedists and the Comtists put together.

"Through 'sweetness and light' and the touch of Gospel charity The Salvation Army has survived its earlier struggles and out of weakness has been made strong. It is a lesson for our day. Pursuing the socialism of practical service, wherein the strong lean down to help the weak, The Army upsets much of our proud logic. And it is because of this redemptive impulse, still at work amongst its members, that all may unite their congratulations on the occasion of The Salvation Army Jubilee."

DOVERCOURT Citadel was the scene of a pretty wedding on Tuesday, August 25th, when Songster Irene Byers and Handsman Herbert Ham were united in marriage by Major Byers, father of the bride. Colonel Adby opened the service with song, and Adjutant Ham, brother of the groom, prayed that God would grant the touch of His favor on the ceremony. Major Byers thanked the many friends who had gathered for their kindness to his daughter, and also wished the bride and groom much of God's blessing.

EULOGY

A Quebec Newspaper Comments in Warm Terms on Army's Progress

IN A RECENT issue of the daily "Telegraph-Chronicle," of Quebec City, Quebec, the editor took occasion to eulogize The Salvation Army upon the occasion of the Diamond Jubilee Celebrations in England. The editorial was as follows:

"Members of The Salvation Army recently celebrated the sixtieth year of their organization at Mile End Road, London, England. What at that time was facetiously called 'Two Booths and a Tent' has since grown into a world-wide mission, with stations in eighty different countries, representing fifty-nine languages and numbers upwards of two million souls in the roll-call of regulars. The fact that fifty thousand such assembled at Crystal Palace for this commemoration, and that Hyde Park would scarcely have held the crowd had all The Army forces been mobilized, is the best comment upon the phenomenal increase and growth of a crusade which deserves to be ranked with the work of medieval friars, the reforming zeal of the Lollards and the evangelical revival under leadership of the Wesleys.

It was in dire poverty and invincible hope that William Booth and his young wife began their efforts, and only by the faith that laughs at impossibilities did they manage to see their mission come up out of great tribulation into assured power and triumph.

"Even forty years ago Army missionaries were ridiculed, mobbed, persecuted, and in many cases imprisoned for breach of the peace. That time has vanished like an ill dream. Since then The Army folk have been formally invited by Governments to come in and do their endeavors in behalf of social order and uplift.

"The man who refuses his coin for The Salvation Army kettle, labels himself a bigot or a misanthrope. That original collection of eighteen pence, made at Mile End Road sixty years ago, has been a more profitable investment for humanity than all the works of the Cyclopedists and the Comtists put together.

"Through 'sweetness and light' and the touch of Gospel charity The Salvation Army has survived its earlier struggles and out of weakness has been made strong. It is a lesson for our day. Pursuing the socialism of practical service, wherein the strong lean down to help the weak, The Army upsets much of our proud logic. And it is because of this redemptive impulse, still at work amongst its members, that all may unite their congratulations on the occasion of The Salvation Army Jubilee."

CONGRESSES IN SCANDINAVIA

Some Impressions of Victory-Congresses Conducted by the GENERAL and MRS. BOOTH in Denmark, Sweden and Finland

LIGHT! Warmth, inspiring radiance! A track of Salvation life over the sunlit lands of Northern Europe! The trail of many hundreds of seekers after the life of God! That is what one sees in looking back over the long, tiring, but triumph-strewn way the General and Mrs. Booth have come in conducting memorable Congresses in Denmark, Sweden, and Finland. Without exception, the Leaders of the Territories visited gathering up and voicing with no uncertain sound the deepest convictions of their Officers and peoples, bore testimony at the conclusion of each history-making series of Meetings. As we have all been praying, God has come with you! Therefore something lasting was bound to happen.

LOVE AND LOYALTY BOND

It was an undisguised joy for these Comrades of the fair domains of "fir and pine," island and lake, to greet those whom they hold in an affection that is touching and an esteem that is perfect. Time and distance entail years of separation, but the bond of loyalty and love is not broken nor the gratitude for such leaders and exemplars of all that is implied in the term of "Salvationist" quenched. And, to a remarkable degree, the Press and the public—whether "Conservative" or "Socialist," King or President—joined in the acclaims of welcome and appreciation. But, after all, it was to the northern warriors of the Blood and Fire that the presence of the General and Mrs. Booth brought inexpressible happiness and biggest blessing. To see, time after time, large Halls crowded with Danes, Swedes, Finns—ardent, sturdy, strong-voiced—waiting, so to speak, for the word of command as well as of counsel, for the signal to advance as well as the call to a greater personal spirituality and devotion—was to realize something of The Army's power and possibilities such as no statements or statistics alone can convey.

THE GENERAL'S ABLE SUBSTITUTE

Whilst the General would have been heard and honored in Stockholm and Helsingfors with the same gladness and enthusiasm which he encountered in Copenhagen, we shall, we hope, be forgiven for saying that Mrs. Booth was an altogether able substitute and an unequalled representative! To herself, and to those able and devoted Officers who assisted her, tribute has already been paid. Their work was concerned with both the foundations and the top stone of Officership and Soldiership—which spelt in one word is service. And for this vital task, none than Mrs. Booth is better qualified. Public or private, morning or night, no Meeting or gathering was allowed to close without a clear exposition and a cogent plea founded upon the bed-rock of Army doctrine and teaching—Holiness unto the Lord! That—in Commissioner Duff's beautiful favorite Scripture rendering "we being delivered out of the hand of our enemies might serve Him without fear, in Holiness and righteousness . . . all the days of our life."

SENT BY GOD

So much of the success of the second and third Congresses centred in the Leader—it could not be otherwise—that we may well praise God for His upholding grace under conditions of no ordinary stress and difficulty. The traveling, the heat, the translation—which, splendidly as it was performed, must ever constitute somewhat of a drawback, especially when, as in Finland, a double translation is necessary—would have taxed the strength of a Samson; yet all and more was cheerfully undertaken by Mrs. Booth, whose graciousness and witness to the deep things of God, and anxiety for the spiritual well-being, first of Officers and Soldiers alike and then of the people at large, won for her a higher place than ever in the regard of the dwellers in these virile nations.

The grandest factor of all, however—without which it is humbly acknowledged by every Salvationist the most brilliant functions would have failed in attaining the real purposes of the Congresses—was the abiding and overshadowing presence of the Holy Spirit—enlightening, guiding, empowering—from gathering to gathering and Session to Session. Of each of the engagements—and they were neither few nor small, being indeed duplicated on several occasions in Finland in order to meet the necessities of the dual language—it could with reverence be said, "Behold! God is here!" Same of these periods of Divine visitation are too sacred for description—they were infinitely tender and glorious.

Finally, the whole was a genuine, refreshing piece of The Army's spirit and The Army's aim. That spirit burns and shines in Scandinavia. New strength, resolves, the confidence of overcomers, were depicted there. In short—there has been left behind a resplendent Salvation glow which assuredly heralds a coming day of soul-saving triumphs for the three countries!—H. L. T.

THOSE BACHELOR TUNES

AN INTERESTING AND ORIGINAL ARTICLE WRITTEN BY ADJUTANT BRAMWELL COLES

ONE of the penalties of full-time service with an Army Band is the risk of missing the treasures of the Song-Book. Concerned as he is with his part, the Bandsman can rarely give much attention to the words of the song that is being sung, and he thus frequently misses a great deal of blessing. It is well worth while to go to some little trouble to overcome this difficulty.

The most obvious way of using the Song-Book, that of carrying a thin-paper edition and turning up the Song-Book as well as the Band-Book number, is not always practicable. Keeping one eye on the music and one on the "stick" is sufficient for many of us. We should require a third optic to follow the words, not to speak of the difficulties of the BBB player (or the trombones) in handling a Song-Book during the Band's playing. The Holiness Meeting songs in which the Band can take vocal part are more or less limited in number, according to local circumstances. It is fairly obvious that a little extra trouble is needed, and the following suggestions are made:—

1—Attendance at week-night Meetings. Let it be known that the writer is rarely seen there! What with classes, practices, and other essential Army duties, week-night Meetings are, as a rule, out of the question, and there are many in a similar position. Nevertheless, the Song-Book student will make opportunities if he is keen and he will perhaps discover an entirely new side of his Corps. Week-night Meetings without Band or Songsters on duty and with a limited congregation, are often the source of rich blessing. There is an intimate touch about them which is sometimes less evident in the larger Sunday gatherings. The Officer in charge of a large Corps told the writer sometime ago that almost without exception those persons who had found the Blessing of Full Salvation during his long stay—they are not few—had done so in week-night Meetings.

2—A Band Practice Song. Some Bands open or close with "a good sing from the Song-Book," instead of the usual chorus, and it is invariably the means of great blessing, largely because the best of our songs have a carefully-studied design and one can no more get their value by picking out the chorus of an odd verse than can the beauty of a well-laid-out garden be known from the examination of one flower-bed.

3—Open-Air and Indoor Meeting leadership. Where the Bandsman is called upon to lead, he must of necessity explore the Song-Book.

Each of these methods, however, has its limitations. They are dependent upon the range of choice of other people, and the value of the Song-Book, as of the Bible, lies largely in its intensely personal message. The Song-Book has a secret for my own heart and only I can discover it. My dearest friend does not see it exactly as I do. Some of its songs have, in my eyes, a surpassing beauty. They never fail to widen my vision and deepen my faith, but for the next Comrade they are just ordinary songs, while those which do not specially appeal to my heart are vital forces in the experience of others.

We can therefore only discover the true value of the Song-Book by individual exploration, and one of the most attractive ways of doing this is by the royal road of tunes. As Bandsmen we deal in tunes. We live by them. Our feet always march to a tune, on week-days and Sundays, and we have our favorites. No more interesting experiment can be found than that of searching for words to wed to our favorite tunes. A song without words is a poor sort of a fellow, a regular bachelor, no-fire-and-ice-kind of host. Give him the wife of your choice and what a slippery-by-the-fire-charming smiles-and-dainty-supper welcome awaits you at any time!

For instance, the writer loves "St. Catherine" (Special Occasions Book, page, 19, No. 15). For years it was a favorite bachelor (or rather spinster!) tune, a succession of pleasant sounds which made glad many odd moments, as the melody was "la-lad!" through. One day he met Song No. 287 (English), verse five, and there was a wedding straight away! Henceforth the "la-lad" "St. Catherine" became this glorious prayer:—"Oh, that I as a little child

May follow Thee, and never rest
Till sweetly Thou has breathed Thy mild

And lowly mind into my breast!
Nor ever may we parted be Till I am one, my Lord, with Thee." Now the odd moments become times of inspiration because a definite idea is behind the tune.

Again, he has marched miles of pavements to "Diademata" (special Occasions Book, page 13, No. 16), mentally "ta-ra-hing" like the King's trumpeters, forgetting the noise and the jostling crowd in the martial melody. There was another wedding, and now the noise and the pavements are replaced by visions of a great crusade, for "Ta-ra-ha" "Diademata" has become:—

"See on the mountain top
The standard of your God!
In Jesus' name I lift it up,
All stained with hallowed blood.
His standard-bearer, I
To all the nations call.
Let's all to Jesus' cross draw nigh—
He bore the cross for all."

Away the repugnance of daily routine! Away the drabness of my little unknown existence! I am a crusader while that song is with me.

Attention to the songs lined out in the Meetings, use of the metrical index, and general perusal of the Song-Book will reveal worthy brides or husbands for your favorite tunes, and when you have thus been introduced to the possibilities of the Song-Book you will doubtless go on exploring and enriching your soul.

WYCHWOOD

Ensign Hickling, Captain Richardson Our Songsters conducted the Meetings for the week-end August 22nd and 23rd, and a strenuous, but happy time was spent. All Songsters, from the Leader, Brother Ottaway, down to the most recent new-comer, did their utmost to make it a day of days, and each felt abundantly rewarded for a splendid spirit was prevalent.

"ROCK OF AGES"

WINS ONE MORE SOUL

RETURNING to Hamilton after an absence of thirty-one years, a gentleman from Texas heard, on the first day of his return, the Hamilton 1. Band playing "Rock of Ages" to that old favorite tune "No-wood." So moved was he by the soulful playing that he was led, after years of backsliding, to seek God, and in a letter to "The War Cry" he expressed his appreciation of the Band's service, and his determination to endeavor to reduce a broken past by a useful future to his home in the far South.

Bandsmen, take heart. The influence of your playing cannot be undervalued. It is like a ripple commencing in the centre of a lake and reaching to the furthestmost shores. The Books up Yonder will some day reveal how many souls have been won to Christ through your conserved service.

ARMY BANDS

IT IS UNIVERSALLY recognized that The Salvation Army has taken the lead in making use of Brass Bands on a large scale in connection with the carrying on of aggressive Christian work. The Army believes in the power of music to attract the masses, to draw them away from degrading associations and haunts of sin and vice to the House of God, where the simple but glorious truths of the Gospel are proclaimed. The Army's remarkable success in this connection has been noted by other Societies who have in turn formed Brass Bands to aid them in their evangelistic work. There are, however, some features about our Bands which are known and realized by very few, for instance:

- 1—All our Bandsmen must give evidence of conversion.
- 2—All our Bandsmen undertake to abstain from intoxicating drink and the use of tobacco in any form.
- 3—Our Bandsmen receive no remuneration whatever from The Salvation Army; their services are given entirely free.
- 4—On the other hand, the men buy their own uniforms, and contribute regularly to a fund maintained to purchase new music and other accessories indispensable to up-to-date Bands.

LAST YEAR'S ATTENDANCE at the Canadian National Exhibition Toronto—1,519,000—represented one in six of the population of Canada, but the visitors actually came from thirty States of the Union, South America, Great Britain, Continental Europe, New Zealand, Australia and other distant points.

There are 80 permanent structures and 300 temporary ones at the Exhibition.

The grounds are valued at $5,000,000 and the buildings at $6,000,000, a total of $11,000,000, all owned by the City of Toronto.

This will be the 47th anniversary of the National Exhibition. It came into existence in 1879 and was an outgrowth of the old Agricultural Society, which held its first Fair at Niagara in 1793.

There is parking space for 10,000 autos. On the day last year 2,400 United States markers were counted on the grounds.

Miniature electric cars will again be operated to transport the crowds over the miles of paved streets.

The record day's attendance is 230,000. The record for thirteen days is 1,519,000.

The "Ex" has an area of 264 acres. The average of Wembley is 216.

Community sings will again be conducted on the grandstand. Over 25,000 people take part each night.

Great Britain will again have an organized exhibit arranged by the British Federation of Industries which represents 1,900 manufacturing establishments with a capitalization of twenty-five billion dollars.

SHOULD WE PRAY THE DEAD?

ONE'S heart goes out in sympathy to bereaved ones who ask this question. It is easy to understand the impulse to pray for the loved one who has gone to the Lord, but is it right? Is it in accordance with God's will as revealed in His Word?

We find, from the Word, that it is possible that we should not pray for the dead.

Concerning the unsaved dead there are plans, revealing that the present is only opportunity given to men for a rejecting Christ. Even the Roman Church, which includes prayer for the dead, but only for believers, from the idea that "the penal consequences of sin removed in this life, and a further discipline is therefore necessary."

A few Pointed Questions

The following are some points to prove helpful in such a study.

Prayer that is to prevail and be based upon the Word of God as its encouragement. The Bible is full of prayer. And the Bible is full of safe limitations of prayer.

Can we find any instance of prayer for the dead in the words of our Lord? Not one. Is there any example or precept for the dead in the Gospels and in the words of our Lord? Not one.

Can we discover any example or precedent in the life of the early Church in the Acts of the Apostles? Not one. Is there to be found any clear prayer for the dead in the Apostolic Scriptures? Not one.

Is there any instance of prayer for the dead in the Revelation? Not one.

As to the Christian dead, the real question is: Where are they? "Present with the Lord." Cor. 5:8.

LITTLE KNOWN BITS OF CANADIAN HISTORY

No. 1—HOW FRANKLIN TRIED TO CONQUER CANADA

BIOGRAPHIES of famous men are so apt to dwell at such length upon the physical and mental successes of their heroes, that they are sometimes lost to their shortcomings or failures. Such is probably the cause for numerous articles on the life and times of Benjamin Franklin failing to note to any degree the purpose of his visit to Montreal in the Spring of the year 1776. This visit and its purpose resulted in a total failure in so far as Franklin was concerned; but the reader of to-day knows more about him as an investigator of lightning than a self-appointed conqueror of Canada.

The year 1755 witnessed the close of the struggle for supremacy in North America between France and Great Britain. During the thirteen years which followed thousands of citizens of this country would not serve or live but under the French flag, and they returned to the European France whence they or their fathers had come to New France. A much greater number was prevented from following this path by reason of economic conditions, and for them the Quebec Act was passed. In 13 years the French-speaking Canadians who had remained had grown familiar with the sight of the Union Jack, and were contented under the British administration.

To the south lay the thirteen colonies, whence had come very bitter condemnations of the Quebec Act. There the loom of destiny was being set for the struggle that was to found a new nation, and foremost amongst the craftsmen before the loom, was Benjamin Franklin. He had journeyed to London to protest the Quebec Act and other measures before Parliament, and he had decided that the desired goal lay through open rebellion. He argued at great length before the Congress in Philadelphia on the importance of securing aid from Canada, and that body was divided on the peaceful plan of Franklin and the warlike plans of Montgomery. It was decided to try both methods.

So it came about that the year 1775 saw Montreal invaded by a force from New England, and Quebec surrounded by a similar force under General Montgomery. The British garrison held Quebec while starvation and misery walked amid the ranks of the enemy throughout the terrible autumn of 1775. But the Canadians would not respond to appeals to help the invaders, and Franklin came to educate them.

He had met a French printer, Fleury Mesplet, in London, and induced him to come to Philadelphia. With three others they made the long journey by boat and road to Montreal, via Lake Champlain. On the way their stock of paper was ruined in Montreal they issued manifestoes to the populace. These were printed upon wall-paper, for this was the first printing press to come to Montreal. Franklin and his companions had become nicely established when couriers from Quebec brought the tidings of defeat and death that had overtaken the invading army there. Franklin fled from Montreal leaving Mesplet to face the future as best he could. The Canadians would not accept the paper money of the Congress and he was in dire straits. But he printed some books for the clergy of Montreal and then founded a newspaper which is now the Montreal Gazette. Three of Mesplet's books are in the Toronto Public Library and are considered amongst the greatest treasures there.

Canning, British Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs, 1822, who carried on British negotiations with Russia regarding the Alaskan boundary.

SHOULD WE PRAY FOR THE DEAD?

ONE'S heart goes out in sympathy with those bereaved ones who ask this question. It is easy to understand the impulse to continue to pray for the loved one who has gone to be with the Lord, but is it right? Is it in accordance with God's will as revealed in His Word?

We find, from the Word, that it is plainly God's will that we should not pray for the dead.

Concerning the unsaved dead the Scriptures are plain, revealing that the present life is the only opportunity given to men for accepting or rejecting Christ. Even the Roman Catholic Church, which includes prayer for the dead, does not pray for the non-Christian or unconverted dead, but only for believers, from the mistaken idea that "the penal consequences of sin are not all removed in this life, and a further purgatorial discipline is therefore necessary."

A few Pointed Questions

The following are some points which will prove helpful in such a study.

Prayer that is to prevail and be blessed must be based upon the Word of God as its warrant and encouragement. The Bible is full of teaching on prayer. And the Bible is full of safeguards and limitations of prayer.

Can we find any instance of prayer for the dead in the words of our Lord? Not one.

Is there any example or precept as to prayer for the dead in the Gospels and in the life and works of our Lord? Not one.

Can we discover any example or encouragement in the life of the early Church as recorded in the Acts of the Apostles? Not one.

Is there to be found any clear testimony to prayer for the dead in the Apostolic Epistles? Not one.

Is there any instance of prayer for the dead in the Revelation? Not one.

As to the Christian dead, the real question is, What need have we to pray for them?

Where are they? "Present with the Lord" (2 Cor. 5:8).

Where are they? "With Me in Paradise" (Luke 23:43).

Where are they? "In the Lord" (Rev. 14:13).

Where are they? "With Christ; which is very far better" (Phil. 1:23, R.V.).

What are they? Blessed. "Blessed are the dead" (Rev. 14:13).

What are they? At rest. "That they may rest from their labors" (Rev. 14:13).

Where, then, is the place for prayer that they may "rest in peace" when, as a blessed and glorious fact, they are resting? Why should we pray for the "light perpetual" to shine on them when they are in the immediate presence of the Light of the world? Surely the whole teaching of the New Testament on the blessedness, peace, joy, and satisfaction of the Christian dead in the presence of their Lord is a clear and unmistakable proof that prayer for the dead is not only unnecessary, but even cruel, since it is a reflection on their present unspeakable privilege and joy in the Paradise of God.

Examine Yourself

Prayer for the dead has often proved to be spiritually unhealthy and dangerous. It is sometimes said that prayer for the departed is an outcome of natural affection, and we would speak with all respect and tenderness of the love that prompts the continued remembrance in prayer of the dear ones who have passed within the veil. Nevertheless we would venture to put to those who thus pray these two questions: (1) Are you quite sure you are doing that which is true to the revealed will of God in Holy Scripture? (2) Are you not all the time omitting the very thing that will give you the truest satisfaction of soul in relation to your beloved one who is now with Christ? With all sympathy and yet with all plainness, we would dare to say that prayer for the dead is really based on an insufficient knowledge of the joy and glory of the Christian life. To one who knows the real meaning of the Christianity of the New Testament the removal of a dear one to be with Christ is not a reason for prayer, but for thanksgiving and praise.

WHAT DOES THE BIBLE SAY ABOUT IT?

The General's words

Appropos to this subject the General has written some very helpful words. We call the following from his book, entitled: "Life and Religion":—

"And so I say, no matter what may be our opinion about prayers for the dead—and all the more if we are convinced that such prayers can have no efficacy—let us pray for the living—let us pray for their souls! When I have been hearing of some prayers that have been offered, and are being offered, for the safety of the souls who have gone forth for the nation—prayers that they might be spared in the hour of peril on the sea or of danger on the stricken field—I have thought, 'Oh, if only there had been such prayer as this for their souls, how very different might the outlook have been now!'"

"So that when I say, 'Let us pray for the living,' I mean let us have real prayer—prayer that rises from the great depths of desire—prayer that ascends on the wings of love for what we pray for—prayer that climbs to the heart of the Great Father—prayer that appears on the very steps of His Throne, and pleads with Him direct until it prevails."

"Let us then shake off the doubts and fears of unbelief, cleanse ourselves from the dust and stains of selfishness and worldly love, and come with boldness to Jesus our great Mediator and Advocate, and we shall obtain help for the weak and lost and sinful souls in the time of their need."

A HALLELUJAH POLICE OFFICER

CONSTABLE FRED CHURCHILL, ST. JOHN'S, NEWFOUNDLAND, A WONDERFUL TROPHY OF DIVINE GRACE

HE CAME into a Monday night's service just before it began. There were only a few Soldiers and Cadets present at the time. For months, in police uniform, he had listened to the testimonies of the comrades in the Open-Air services, and woe betide the would-be interrupter when he was on duty. Now, in civilian dress, he chose a seat at the back of the Hall. On being greeted by the Captain he said, "I am miserable and unhappy; I've been dismissed from the force to-day for being drunk on duty. It's my own fault; I've been fined and reprimanded before and after each time I promised the Inspector that I would reform. But I've failed and now I am through. If God can save and keep Gordon (referring to a Band Local of the Corps), then God can save me, and Captain, I am really inclined to try."

In a few minutes the Band Local named by the ex-constable entered the building on the way to Band practice. In response to the Captain's nod he came and took a seat near his erstwhile companion in sin, and began to pray and plead while the Captain opened the Meeting. A mighty battle waged among that little group of Soldiers. In the next half hour Fred swayed this way and that, with doubt and fear. He took in every word, and as the Captain from the platform gave out the everlasting truth that "Jesus came not to call the righteous, but sinners to repentance," Fred's soul grasped it. "Sinners, I am one," thought he, and with a determined squaring of the shoulders, the ex-constable deliberately walked from the back of the Hall to the penitent-form. Knowing the fighting nature of the man, there was no doubt in any mind present that he would find Salvation, and as he arose from the penitent-form a mighty shout of victory filled the house.

Our brother's first testimony was characteristic of the man. "Friends, I thank God that I was dismissed to-day from the police force, for only by this means could God bring me to know the folly of trying to reform in my own strength. I have a great weakness, which you know. But through your dealing and praying for me, I've been led to Jesus and I'm now saved. Praise God!"

This convert was recognized by the authorities as one of the most efficient officers in the force. However, he had been given an unusual number of chances to make good, and finally, under very great pain, the Chief had to inform him of his dismissal. Unused to manual labor and working with men of the rougher trade days of trial, when in his new-found love for God it pained him to hear the name of Jesus blasphemed. Loysally did this new disciple witness for his Lord and Saviour among the men of the pick and shovel. Then a period of unemployment further tested him, his large family being dependent upon his earnings. Fred had to learn how to trust God, his Heavenly Father, in every dark hour and well and truly did he learn his lesson. Enrolled as a Soldier he bravely took his stand, testifying and praying especially in the Open-Air. It is now his delight to tell the crowds that Christ can save from the uttermost to the uttermost. He is now reinstated to his former standing in the police force, and always ready, whenever duty permits, to give the helping hand and the kindly word of advice where needed. He is respected by his comrades, officers, who often come to hear him speak and pray at the Corps. Constable Fred Churchill to-day stands a wonderful trophy of Divine Grace, and as he himself testified, "I didn't know what life was worth until I met with Jesus six months ago."

Last Winter he experienced a radical change in the affairs of his life, for he met with God in The Salvation Army, and was gloriously converted. He has since taken a brave stand for the Cause of righteousness and has earned the respect of his men.

On Sunday, July 5th, Adjutant Lodge commissioned Brother Blackmore as Sergeant-Major, which office he bids fair to hold with great credit to himself.

NEW LIGHT THROUGH OLD WINDOWS

By CAPTAIN REG. GAGE, COBourg

This window speaks of: (a) Daniel's courage and trust in God. He had the courage of his convictions.

(b) Regularity of his prayer. It was not spasmodic but an established custom with him. "He kneeled . . . three times a day and prayed."

(c) His manner of praying. "He kneeled upon his knees." A bending of the knees should imply also a bending of the will.

Do we realize, as did Daniel, the value and importance of prayer? Private prayer is a privilege. In a village in Ireland, there stands a lonely little church, built on the site of a monastery dating back one hundred years. In one of the walls of this church there are three small windows, two feet high, called "knee windows." Long ago, leprosy was prevalent in the neighborhood. What were these poor sufferers to do when they desired to worship God or to partake of the Lord's Supper? They could not enter the church and join the other worshippers, and so the windows were put there that they might hear the service and thus be encouraged and strengthened. True, they were banished from the presence of men, but they still enjoyed the presence of God.

3. THE WINDOW OF ASSURANCE—Gen. 8:11. No doubt all are acquainted with the story of Noah and the ark. You will recall that when the waters were abating, Noah sent a dove out from the ark, and after a time it returned to the window with a leaf in its beak, as a sign that the flood had abated and that soon he and his family would be able to set foot on land once again. Even so, to us, there often come floods of temptation, sorrow and difficulty. The old saying is very true: "It never rains but it pours." You look about in the hope of finding land but none is in sight. But there is assurance for you. Give up your doubts, your hidden sins; and then, claiming by God's promise, you will be able to sing with a heart full of holy happiness:

"Blessed assurance, Jesus is mine!
Oh, what a foretaste of glory divine!
Heirs of Salvation, purchase of God,
Born of His Spirit, washed in His blood."

Many professing Christians seem to dwell in a region of spiritual uncertainty. Clouds have an altogether too prominent part in their lives, and pure light is revealed all too seldom. Often the cause of such a state is just this: there is a lack of assurance of sins forgiven. Open the window of your heart and God will send to you His Dove assuring you that all is well.

Application: Many people have withheld the gift of themselves from God, and thus forfeited the various blessings spoken of here only because they feel they cannot do great things. They do not realize that what God wants is their ALL, and no matter how lowly or simple they may be, God will use them. But He must have their ALL. In one of the great cathedrals in England there is a window known as "The Pride of the Cathedral." While there are several other beautiful stained glass windows in the building, this is the proudest of them all. Not only for its beauty and color is it noted, but also for its history. Some other windows were being put into the Cathedral, and as the men filled the pieces of stained glass they found that they had to make the sections a little smaller, which resulted in small pieces of glass of different sizes and colors being thrown aside. A little lad who was attending the workers, seeing the waste glass, began to fit the pieces together in the shape of a window on the cathedral floor. He worked at the window in his spare time, and when at last it was completed, an official of the church who saw the lad at work, marvelled at its magnificence, and used his influence to have the window put in at another part of the church where it may be seen to this day.

Do your talents appear as so much scrap glass? Let God have them and He will beautifully increase them. Open the windows of your heart to the holy influences of His Spirit and He will make your life as a transparent window through which the beauty of Jesus will be seen.

"Bring ye all the tithes into the storehouse, that there may be meat in mine house, and prove me now herewith, saith the Lord of hosts, if I will not open you the windows of heaven, and pour you out a blessing, that there shall not be room enough to receive it."

—Malachi 3:10.

Intro—The word "window" comes from Icelandic, where the people call an opening in the wall a "vindauga," which means literally a window or wind-eye. The window then is used firstly, for the purpose of light; secondly, for obtaining fresh air. Let us consider some windows mentioned in the Scriptures.

1. THE WINDOW OF SALVATION—1 Sam. 19:12.

There we have a picture of David escaping death at the hand of King Saul, when Michael, his wife, lowered him through a window, so that he eluded the men who were sent to murder him. Likewise, through the window of God's Salvation, Light pours into the sinner's darkened soul, and he escapes from sin. Two outstanding benefits are obtained from this Window of Salvation.

(a) Light. Previous to the coming of Christ the world was in a state of spiritual darkness; God opened the window of Heaven and Jesus, the true Light came. "That was the true Light, which lighteth every man which cometh into the world"—John 1:9.

(b) Life. Man ordinarily is dead "in trespasses and sins," but through Salvation spiritual life is received. We pass from "death unto life."

During an uprising of the natives of India at one time one hundred and forty-six English persons were cast into a cell twenty feet square, in which there were only several very small windows to permit a breath of air. Many went mad and fought for a place at the windows, where the cruel murderers stood and mocked them. When the morning dawned, one hundred and twenty-three dead bodies were piled on each side to allow the remainder to stagger out. They perished from the lack of fresh air. Souls are perishing around us, but there is a "Way of Escape." We must point them to this way. It is in Jesus Christ.

2.—THE WINDOW OF PRAYER—Daniel 6.

Daniel's window, by which he prayed, was the scene of a wonderful display of moral courage. In spite of the law of King Darius against petitioning a god other than that which he had set up, Daniel prayed to Jehovah.

VICTORY DISPATCHES from the FIELD

MONTREAL I.

Ensign and Mrs. McEain

Scenes of joy were witnessed at the close of the Sunday night service at Montreal, when four seekers met at the mercy seat. They were remarkably good captures. One poor man, who was deeply stirred and sobbed bitterly, was joined by his crippled wife, and together they knelt and prayed to their God. This inspiring Salvation Meeting concluded what proved to be a glorious day of holy warfare. Major and Mrs. Byers, together with various Social Officers of the city, were in charge. Especially helpful was the testimony meeting conducted by Commandant Parsons in the afternoon. The prayer meeting was in the conduct of Commandant Trickey. Mention should also be made of the splendid Bible talks given by Major Byers; they were the means of greatly cheering and blessing the congregation. The Band, Songsters, and all sections of the Corps worked nobly and well. Ensign and Mrs. McEain are enjoying a well-earned furlough.

DOVERCOURT

Adjutant and Mrs. Riches

In the Dovercourt Citadel on Tuesday, August 11th, the wedding of Sister F. Ham and Assistant Young People's Sergeant-Major Robinson, was conducted by Adjutant F. Ham, brother of the bride. The Salvation meeting was conducted by Colonel and Mrs. O'way, both of whom gave stirring messages.

OSHAWA

Adjutant and Mrs. Barclay

Interest and blessing have attended our meetings in a marked degree of late and a number of souls have found God. On Sunday, August 16th, our Hall was full and at the invitation a young man and his wife made their way to the mercy-seat. Last Sunday, God honored us with three souls. Three young ladies gave their hearts to God on a recent Sunday. The Young People's Band and young people are responsible for the Monday night open-air, through which they have dispensed a great deal of blessing and cheer.

ORILLIA

Adjutant Sowton, Captain Lennox

Week-end meetings were led by Major Thompson, of Territorial Headquarters. ## MANITOULIN ISLAND

Lieutenant Renshaw

The work is progressing here. Our meetings at the Indian Reserve continue to interest all who attend and the singing is especially good. The Sunday evening services in the theatre at Little Current are of much blessing and attendances have increased wonderfully. The Y.P. Work is also making good headway and the children are attending in larger numbers. On Decision Sunday nine of the children came forward and gave their hearts to God.

WOODSTOCK

Adjutant and Mrs. Woolcott

Woodstock is on the move, praise God! The past two weeks have been seasons of blessing. Larger crowds have stood around the open-air rings, and real rousing times have been experienced at inside meetings. On Sunday night two girls came to the mercy-seat and were gloriously saved.

HAMILTON III.
Adjutant and Mrs. Sanford

We are experiencing great times here. The Holiness meetings, especially, are of great blessing to all. The weekly visits to the Hospital are also much appreciated by the patients.

LONG BRANCH

Captain Cooch, Lieutenant Clarke

From August 3rd to the 9th, Sergeants Garnett, Smith and Walker, from the Training Garrison, were with us. The Thursday night meeting will be long remembered because of the lesson brought so forcefully to our hearts, as will also the Saturday night show, and at night our faith was rewarded at the close of Captain Hiltz's stirring address by the sight of four at the Cross.

SWANSEA

Captain A. Fisher, Lieutenant Ash

On Sunday, August 9th, we had with us Sergeant Lorimer and Cadets Spratt and Fisher, from the Training Garrison. The Sergeant and Cadets worked hard and God blessed their efforts. We counted it a privilege to have Brigadier and Mrs. Burrows with us on Sunday, August 16th. In the morning meeting God brought blessing through the Brigadier's message. At the evening open-air meeting many heard the message and were blessed.

NEW WATERFORD
Captain and Mrs. Mercer

Some splendid times have been enjoyed here lately under the leadership of our new Officer. As many Comrades are returning to the Corps after having been employed elsewhere during the miners' strike, we are glad to announce that our Hall, which we have outgrown, is being renovated and enlarged. During a recent Sunday night meeting an open-air service was conducted, one recruit being sworn-in under the "Yellow, Red and Blue." The address was delivered by Lieutenant Davies, of Chatham, who is spending her furlough here.—M.M.

KITCHENER
Ensign and Mrs. Square-Briggs

WESLEYVILLE (Nfld.)

Ensign and Mrs. Hewitt

We have said good-bye to our beloved Officers, Adjutant and Mrs. Woodhead, who have had a very successful year of two years. During this time they have endeared themselves greatly to the hearts of the people of this little town. Almost two hundred souls were saved; quite a number of whom are taking their stand as Senior and Junior Soldiers. All past Special Effort records were beaten.

open-air, when quite a number of people stopped to listen to the words of Sergeant Garnett on "The whole armor of God." The text was illustrated by Sergeant Walker.

Sunday was a day of much blessing and we are confident that eternity will reveal what was accomplished.

We were especially favored on Sunday, August 16th, by having with us Christian Meade and Hilz, Sergeants Gurney and Lorimer, and Cadets Spratt and Fisher from the Training Garrison. Sergeant Gurney spoke in the Holiness meeting of the things that hinder our growth in the spiritual life. In the afternoon three rousing open-airs were held along the lake

CHAPTER IX.

WHEN Eric worked under it he had to stoop, and the sailors laughingly spoke of him as "the big boy in a doll's house." Eric resented the joshing, but wisely kept his feelings to himself.

On leaving Aalesund the "Vega" carried a light cargo and rode high above the water, but some distance up the coast, at a few of the villages, stops were made for pigs, and within a short time the boat was filled with a yelling, squealing, grunting load that knew no peace by day or night.

Bedlam on the Seas

The bedlam was so great at times that the sailors could hardly hear themselves talk, and Eric more than once wished he could escape from the ship. But he was forced to put up with the racket until the boat docked at Bergen and the pigs were turned over to a local soap factory.

Eric had contracted to stay with the "Vega" for six weeks. His time was up while the boat was still in harbor, and he lost no time in obtaining his pay and asking the captain to relieve him of his duties.

"One trip with the pigs is enough," he told the Captain. "You mightn't have another cargo like it for the next ten years. I'm hoping you don't. But here's one that won't be with you if you do."

"Can't say that I blame you, son," said the Captain, as he handed over the money. "It's not overly pleasant to have pigs for travelling companions. But don't say you'll never travel with us again. We'll be going up and down the coast, and if you happen to see us when you really want a job come and talk things over. It won't seem so bad after you've been away awhile."

Eric didn't say anything but quickly put into action what had been in his mind for days. That was the plan of shipping away on one of the big liners for a foreign cruise. He had always wanted to see the world, and could think of no better time to start than the present.

Once on land he immediately looked up the shipping office of one of the larger steamship companies and was pleased to find that the man in charge, a portly, overfed individual, had been on the lookout all day for a young man to take the job of coal passer. Eric seemed to have all the necessary qualifications and was quickly hired.

Some time later he went out to the "Corona," a large freighter with an imposing length of deck. Eric felt lost and somewhat abashed as he climbed up the rope ladder from a small skiff, and sought out the engineer. As a matter of fact, he came to the right office only after asking a half dozen of the crew and crossing and recrossing his own steps several times. Eric had never been on a ship of like pretensions, and he didn't know how to act when the engineer, who was dressed in white, admitted him to his office.

Spoke of the major workings of the ship and then told him of the hours he would be expected to work, and showed him his bunk on the second tier of a row of bunks along the wall in the forecabin. Eric thought the room might be larger and cleaner but said nothing, and quickly signed the necessary papers when they were presented to him.

That afternoon he got his first touch of real work as a coal passer, and when it came time to quit he was quite ready to lay down his shovel and make his way to the bunk. It seemed as if every bone in his body ached. His face was sore and tingling from close contact with the flames, and it was several days before he became used to the new work.

When only a short distance out from port Eric became acquainted to Newcastle, England, he felt an arm patting him, but suffered in silence and was voted quite a hero by his mates. At Newcastle the captain picked up a cargo of coal for Italy, and they were soon on their high seas again.

Several days out from port a storm arose. Early in the afternoon Eric felt the ship begin to roll, and at night could hardly keep his feet.

"Must be a terror on deck," said the old hands said to him. "What be surprised if the sea's running over the deck. We'll have to get that much harder in here, and you not soon see the engineer here. He's fearfully afraid of a storm."

The idea of the engineer being afraid of the storm amused Eric. The engineer was a big man, of square jaw and wicked tongue, and he thought he was hardly the one to be afraid of anything. Imagine his surprise, then, when he went up to the chief's room a few minutes later and found the man on his knees.

"Lord," he was praying, "I know I'm not much, but take this storm away and I'll be better. Just let the storm away and I'll try to be good. I know I've been—"

Eric waited to hear no more but quietly shut the door and looked down the ladder to his quarters. Some two or three of his fellow sailors were sitting around on the bunk and he laughingly told them of his experience.

"Just as I thought, but just wait until it calms again," one of the men remarked. "I heard the old fellow would act that way but never believed it. He'll be his self again tomorrow, and you see if I am not right."

He was. Shortly after the ship began to run along on its even keel the engineer came below and stared at the men, cursing this one and that whom he thought were working so hard as they might, and bitterly reviling both the gods above and below the seas. Eric could hardly believe it was the same man he had heard at prayer a short time before.

His greatest surprise, however, came when the boat was docked at Naples. Christmas dawned the day after they began to unload their cargo, and the captain called the crew on deck for a short service. Singing out the engineer as a "God-fearing man," he asked him to take charge.

The engineer, without so much as a blush of shame, read from the Bible, delivered a short talk setting forth the wages of sin and the wrath to come, and finally closed with prayer. Eric wondered how the man was able to do it, and never got over his feelings at that time.

He was learning something of human nature at its worst.

(To be continued)

John 3:6-7

Eric handed him a pass from the shipping office.

"So you're the lad who wants a taste of life on the big seas," the engineer said, as he motioned Eric to a seat in the cabin. "I'm mighty glad you've come to us and I'll do what I can to show you the ropes. Let's go below."

The engineer led Eric to, what seemed to him, miles below deck, finally coming to a room that was banked on the one side with coal and the other with great furnaces, whose doors opened now and again and let out a long sheet of flame that was dimmed as the men, stripped to the waist, passed coal through the opening.

The sight awed Eric. He had never dreamed that the great power of a mighty steamship was stirred up in such a place, and to think that he should have a part in the effort, pleased him not a little.

Back up on deck the engineer with another young lad by the name of Dick Johansen. Dick was two years his senior, and took a special delight in the descriptive coloring that had been added to his skin by the tattooing needle.

"You really oughta have some," he said to Eric one night over the evening meal. "You're not really a sailor until you do."

Eric thought the same and was introduced to an old sailor, one of the deck hands, who showed a willingness to perform the operation if given a suitable reward. Young Nansen, ready to give up anything to be an out-and-out sailor, agreed to an exorbitant sum and in return had a girl's head and heart engraved on his arm. He winced with pain while the operation was being performed, but felt quite a sailor and on equal terms with the best when he finally went below and showed his arm to the crew.

The following day, and all the way

WHEN THE SHIP IS ROTTEN

Much has been said and written about rotten ships, and what a sad piece of iniquity it is for any, just for the sake of present gain, to attempt to trifle with human life. In sending men in ships that ought to have been broken up long years ago. Old unseaworthy hulks patched up and painted, then freighted with precious life, all sacrificed for the cupidity and covetousness of the owners, how the world reprobates such conduct, and cries out against it. Would that all equally condemned the attempts to sail to Heaven in the rotten hulks of man's providing. When we try to gain everlasting life by anything that we do, say, or promise, ignoring the new and living Way, what is it but sailing in a rotten ship that must founder? When we boast ourselves of our morality, sincerity, good deeds and intentions, ignoring the work and person of Jesus the Saviour, what is it but a fair coat of bright paint that covers a worm-eaten, rotten ship, that will not stand one breath of God's judgment? God condemned all such ways 4,000 years ago, providing an ark, even Christ Jesus, for the saving of the soul—the sinner's refuge and way of escape. "Come thou, and all thy house, into the ark."

to Newcastle, England, he felt arm pain him, but suffered silence and was voted quite a by his mates. At Newcastle he picked up a cargo of coal for Italy, and they were soon on high seas again.

Several days out from port storm arose. Early in the morning Erie felt the ship begin to roll at night could hardly keep his legs.

"Must be a terror on deck," the old hands said to him. "I was surprised if the sea's mad over the deck. We'll have to make that much harder in here, and not soon see the engineer here. He's fearfully afraid of a storm."

The idea of the engineer's fear of the storm amused Erie. The engineer was a big man, of jaw and wicked tongue, and he thought he was hardly the one to be afraid of anything. Imagine his surprise, then, when he went up to the chief's room a few minutes later and found the man on his knees.

"Lord," he was praying, "I know I'm not much, but take this storm away and I'll be better. Just let the storm away and I'll try to be good. I know I've been—"

Erie waited to hear no more but quietly shut the door and slipped down the ladder to his quarters. Some two or three of his fellows were sitting around on the bunk and he laughingly told them of his experience.

"Just as I thought, but just wait until it calms again," one of the men remarked. "I heard the old man would not that way but never believed it. He'll be his self again tomorrow, and you see if I am not right."

He was. Shortly after the storm began to subside and the crew began to roo along on the deck. The engineer came below and stood at the men, cursing this one and that whom he thought were working as hard as they might. He bitterly reviling both the gods above and below the seas. Erie could hardly believe it was the same man he heard at prayer a short time before.

His greatest surprise, however, came when the boat was docked at Naples. Christmas dawned the day after they began to unload the cargo, and the captain called the crew on deck for a short service. Standing at the engineer as a "God-fearing man," he asked him to take charge. The engineer, without so much as a blush of shame, read from the Bible, delivered a short talk on the worth of the wages of sin and the wrath to come, and finally closed with prayer. Erie wondered how the man was able to do it, and over got his feelings at that time.

He was learning something of the human nature at his worst.

Many Visitors Participate in Sunday's Meetings—Six Seekers

Visitors from Florida, Regina, Winnipeg, Moncton and England were in the meetings held during last week-end, many of whom took an active part in the day's fight. In the morning Holiness Meeting, Ensign McBain and Captain Burrell, of Montreal, took a prominent part. The afternoon Park Meeting in the Allan Gardens was presided over by Adjutant Sydney Weeks, of the Immigration Staff. Envoy Young, of the Men's Social, read the Scripture Lesson. The usual Sunday afternoon Meeting in the Temple was conducted by the Songster Leader and was a period of much profit and blessing.

A "gathering of the clans" took place at night. Many "old-timers" were seen here and there in the congregation. Envoy Peacock, of Regina, gave a thrilling testimony. "Twenty-seven years ago the Envoy farewelled from the Temple to go West and he still has the old-time fire. After a sweetly-sung solo by Junior Robert Darling, Lieut.-Colonel Combs, of Winnipeg, gave us a thoughtful message from the Word of God. The Colonel, who was heartily welcomed, was formerly stationed on three different occasions at the Temple and he and Mrs. Combs were both greatly beloved in the Corps. Sitting by his side on the platform was his first Captain, Y.P. S.M. Frank Ham, of Dovercourt, the father of Adjutant Ham. The first call to the mercy seat had hardly been sounded before one young man was led to the Cross by Envoy Peacock. Six in all knelt at the mercy seat during the day. The late Sunday night Open-Air, the last for the season, was largely attended.

LET US PRAY

O, Jesus, Who art the Light of the World, hasten, we pray Thee, to reveal Thy glory to those who, not yet knowing Thee, are still in darkness. Bless the labors of those Officers in distant lands who are battling with superstition, ignorance, and prejudice, and endeavoring to make known the all-surpassing Love of Calvary. Give them the frequent joy of a ready acceptance of their message, and in seasons of rejection, disappointment, and loneliness support them by Thy Presence and the assurance of Thy coming triumph: for Thy Name's sake. Amen.

FREDERICTON CELEBRATION

ON SUNDAY, August 9th, the Comrades of Fredericton celebrated the 40th Anniversary of the Corps. In the morning service there was the dedication of the infant child of the Color Sergeant, Malcolm Beatty, whose name happens to be the first on the permanent Soldiers Roll. Commandant and Mrs. Barry, who were stationed in Fredericton in 1914, were present, and the Comrades were delighted to see them again. In the night service, five veterans who took part in the first enrolment were seated on the platform, and each gave a brief account of early day battles, and also expressed themselves as proud of the fact that they had been associated with The Army all through the past forty years of fighting. A certificate of retirement was presented to Sergeant Harry Osbourne who, after thirty-seven years' of Local Officership, honorably retires with the Commissioner's sanction. The Comrades and friends joined in praising God for the many victories that have been won under the dear old Flag, and pledged themselves to be faithful to the Lord and The Army.

Ten names were read of those who figured in the first enrolment, and who have laid down their weapons of warfare on earth and joined those who had fought the good fight and received the promised crown.

'TOE-RAG' TURNS THE TABLES!

A Danger to the Police and a Terror to the Town, He Was Transformed by Salvation

"H A-HA!—old Toe-Rag—beaver!" shouted a party of schoolboys, as they precipitately took to their heels and fled. And the object of their derision? The only person to whom the salutation might have been addressed presented a sadly familiar sight. Unshaven and dirty, clothed in rags and tatters, nothing between his heels and the ground; as little hiding his toes from the sky.

He stands and sways. A stone comes rolling to his feet. "Toe-Rag!" again echoes from a safe distance—and thus we are introduced.

Nor does the fact that he represents so many of his countrymen make us less sad. Surely no one could ever become so familiar with sin as to be able to tolerate the thought and witness the sight without feeling sad.

"Where did he begin—and how will he finish—this fellow, Toe-Rag?" we ask. Fortunately we are able to satisfy our curiosity as to how he began; and as happily we have every reason to predict a "good finish"—for Toe-Rag has already become a new creature.

But to start at the beginning: A little boy of seven stands trembling before the local magistrates. "Fred Bruce, you are accused of stealing!" Another year has scarcely passed when this boy makes a second appearance. So prolific is his output of "swear-words" that, child though he is, a fine is imposed for the offence.

Surely two appearances before the police at the age of eight would frighten any child into behavior that would at least be moderate. Not so Freddy!

Stealing and swearing soon became allied to the drink habit in the attempt to make their victim notorious—and in this they succeeded. Still quite young, and very drunk, this "wild man" threatened to throw a gentleman into a river, for which he received a stiff sentence.

But he had not yet reached the foot of the hill. To such an extent were dishonesty and greed dragging him down that he even stole a fellow-prisoner's ration. For this he had "three days on bread and water."

Could there be any hope for him? At the time that we were introduced to him he had become notorious throughout the county in which he lived. So extreme was the craving for drink that desperate methods were used to obtain money for this end.

One of his favorite tactics was that of jumping into the river for coppers, while if other appeals failed he would resort to violence—threatening assault in order to secure the needed cash.

The story is the old one of "from bad to worse"—marked by the police—hopeless of himself, and the despair of others. Thus he drinks on, the boys shout "Toe-Rag," the drunks cheer when he attacks the police with a frying-pan, and even his own mother becomes so sadly desperate that when, in his drunkenness, he falls down a flight of stairs into a flooded cellar, she tells him "he ought to have stayed there."

Can you wonder that the old question again arises, "How will he finish?"

His drunken pals cheered when he attacked the police; but The Army was "after" him.

But a happy change took place when, as a drunken wretch, in rags, and with twenty-five convictions against him, he staggered into an Army Hall, and got saved, and for the sixteen years that have elapsed since Sergeant-Major Newell shook his hand at the mercy-seat he has been a new creature.

"Toe-Rag," the notorious, the disreputable, has passed away. In his place there now lives and serves—Color-Sergeant Fred Bruce, who, this year, smashed his Self-Denial Target by collecting in the public-houses in which he used to drink.

"How will he finish?" In Heaven, no doubt.
